

Spiritual Letters of Pere Didon (Classic Reprint)

On March 13, 1900, Pere Didon died suddenly at Toulouse. He succumbed to an attack of angina pectoris while in the prime of life, escaping the infirmity of old age and the gradual decay of natural power. God spared him those down-grade years which to such a nature as his would have been indeed hard to bear. Pere Didon's influence over minds and souls during the last quarter of the century was such that a deep interest must attach to all that relates to him and all that he wrote. His books will be edited afresh, his sermons will be published, his life written; but these Letters bring the reader closely into contact with the living man. Those who knew and loved him will find something of his noble soul in these eloquent and stirring pages, which are indeed an echo of the power which inspired him.
